TEXT:

[...] These days, CISCO is peddling e-mail software, video-conferencing systems, cable TV boxes – even furniture – as it tries to break out of the data center and its products in front of ordinary office workers.

"It is continuously trying to reinvent itself", said Mark Sue, an analyst with RBC Capital Markets.

The effort directly challenges a main area of growth for some CISCO's big customers, including IBM, Oracle and, most pointedly, Microsoft.

The line of business aims to provide a unified set of communication tools that workers can use to make calls, send e-mail messages, hold Web conferences and send instant messages.
